Pharmaceutical, Biotech, Device and Chemical Practice

Our Firm has a wide-ranging defense product liability practice. The cases we have handled have involved chemicals, pharmaceutical products, medical devices, automobiles, swimming pools, industrial gases and equipment, among other types of products. They have included claims for death, birth defects, systemic neurologic and rheumatologic diseases, quadriplegia and paraplegia, allergies, severe burns, lung diseases, cancer and other injuries. Our defenses in some of these matters have involved the use of sophisticated demonstrative aids, mock juries, and the interpretation for lay people of complicated expert scientific testimony. We have coordinated defenses and served as lead counsel in multi-defendant cases, national coordinating counsel in “mass tort” litigation, and national scientific evidence counsel for a major pharmaceutical company.

Our practice for companies in the pharmaceutical, biotechnology, medical device and chemical industries offers an unusual combination of depth in industry knowledge and scientific expertise. We have developed expert defenses based on a wide range of specialties in medicine, psychiatry, epidemiology, toxicology and chemistry. The Firm brings the experience and understanding gained in hundreds of major client representations, successfully presenting legal and factual issues to juries, judges, arbitrators/mediators and other decision makers in ways that are both understandable and persuasive.

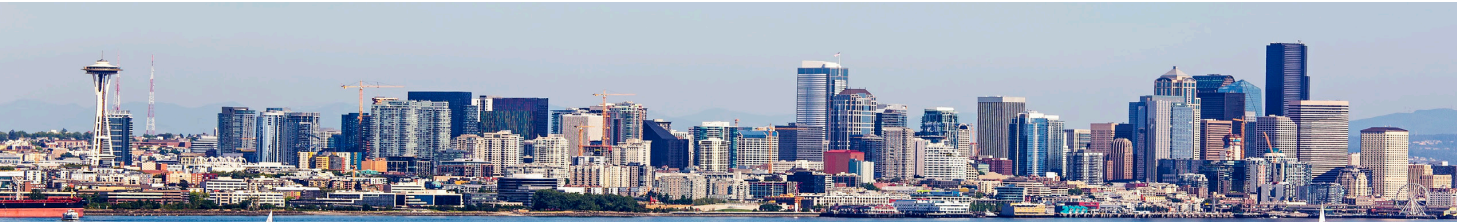

We have represented clients in large mass torts in the U.S., and associated litigation in Canada, and in other pattern litigation and individual disputes. Roles have also included National Coordinating Counsel, Regional Counsel, Member of Defendants' Steering Committee, and Trial Counsel. We team well with other firms and have been members of several “virtual” defense firms playing specialty roles in large-scale litigation as Science Counsel, Regional Counsel or Discovery Counsel.

Partner Beth L. Kaufman is a seasoned trial lawyer. In the product liability and toxic tort area, Ms. Kaufman has served as national coordinating counsel, national science counsel, New York counsel in mass torts and other pattern litigation and as a member of nationwide “virtual law firms.” She participated directly in the development of a scientific defense and of expert evidence as part of the national virtual law firm charged with developing such evidence and witnesses for companies in the automotive industry, in order to defend mesothelioma and lung cancer cases. In these various roles, Ms. Kaufman has developed innovative strategies and achieved excellent results for her clients, ranging from defense verdicts at trial to summary judgment to convincing plaintiffs to abandon their cases due to a lack of merit. She has identified and developed top experts in various scientific fields and medical disciplines and turned them into effective testifying experts. Ms. Kaufman is the immediate past President of the National Association of Women Lawyers and is the Vice-Chair Secretary of the American Bar Association Section of Litigation. She has also chaired the Product Liability Litigation Committee of the American Bar Association's Section of Litigation. Ms. Kaufman served on the New York City Mayor's Advisory Committee on the Judiciary from 2008-2013, appointed by Mayor Michael Bloomberg, and was Second Circuit Representative to the ABA Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary from 2009-2012, a role in which she vetted more than 25 prospective federal court nominees, most of whom went on to become District and Circuit Court Judges.

Partner Charles B. Updike has tried more than 60 cases to verdict, most of them before juries. He has tried cases in the areas of product liability, health care delivery, real property development rights, commercial torts, breaches of a wide variety of commercial contracts, breaches of M & A agreements, securities claims, and internal partnership and corporate disputes. Mr. Updike has been national counsel in a product liability mass tort and has served as outside general counsel with respect to litigated matters in the United States for a major multinational corporation. In the latter capacity, he supervised the work of lawyers nationwide. He is counsel to a national trade association and is regularly consulted by its members with respect to litigation and claims issues with special emphasis on how to prevent them. He is also an accomplished appellate advocate and has actively participated in all aspects of alternative dispute resolution. Mr. Updike served as Law Clerk to a federal judge in the Southern District of New York and then went directly into the United States Attorney's Office, where he became head of the Narcotics Unit, tried some of its most difficult cases and supervised other Assistants. He has taught New York Practice and Procedure as an adjunct professor at Cardozo Law School and has taught trial practice at Harvard and Hofstra Law Schools. He is active in a variety of bar associations and serves on several boards, both commercial and charitable.

Products Liability Experience

Why We're Different

Walsworth's products liability team has a long track record of successfully defending clients against a wide variety of actions, including claims for negligence and strict liability alleging manufacturing, design, and warning defects, breach of warranty, unfair business practices, false advertising, and consumer fraud.

We represent a broad range of clients, including manufacturers, distributors, local and national retailers, and contractors, up to and through trial. Our cases often involve claims of catastrophic injury and death, and the list of product types we defend is long and varied.

Many of the products liability cases we handle involve multiple plaintiffs and are litigated under unique state or federal mass tort rules or as class actions. Our attorneys have years of experience defending against, and defeating, class allegations prior to and after certification. We often act as national or regional coordinating counsel for our clients where claims have been filed in multiple jurisdictions.

We pride ourselves on fully learning our clients' businesses to better understand the design, manufacturing, and quality control processes that are used to create and bring their products to market, which helps us better defend those products and their key decision-makers in litigation.

In every case, we assess risk at an early stage and communicate regularly with our clients to develop strategies to achieve the best possible outcome. In cases with no liability or questionable liability, we pursue and have obtained numerous summary judgments as well as defense verdicts at trial.
